

Celebrating the Centennial of Naval Aviation in 1/72 Scale

2010 USN/USMC/USCG 1/72 Aircraft Kit Survey

As 2011 marks the centennial of U.S. naval aviation, aircraft modelers might be interested in this list of US naval aircraft — including those of the Marines and Coast Guard, as well as captured enemy aircraft tested by the US Navy — which are available as 1/72 scale kits. Why 1/72? There are far more kits of naval aircraft available in this scale than any other. Plus, it's my favorite, in spite of advancing age and weakening eyes.

This is an updated version of an article I prepared for the 75th Anniversary of US naval aviation and which was published in a 1986 issue of the old IPMS-USA Update. It's amazing to compare the two and realize what developments have occurred, both in naval aeronautical technology and the scale modeling hobby, but especially the latter. My 1986 list included 168 specific aircraft types available in kit form from thirty-three manufacturers — some injected, some vacuum-formed — and only three conversion kits and no resin kits. Many of these names (Classic Plane, Contrails, Eagle's Talon, Esci, Ertl, Formaplane, Frog, Griffin, Hawk, Matchbox, Monogram, Rareplane, Veeday, Victor 66) are no longer with us or have been absorbed by others. This update lists 345 aircraft types (including the original 168) from 192 different companies (including the original 33), many of which, especially the producers of resin kits, were not in existence in 1986, and some of which were unknown to me at the time. This list also includes catalog numbers, where known (some manufacturers did not use them); my original list did not.

Disclaimers: (1) I have tried to list every available subject, including limited-production vacuum-formed and resin kits, based on available references. In those cases where one company released a kit originated by another, the name of the originating company (where known) follows in parentheses; however, in order to keep this to a reasonable size, I have deliberately omitted many references to obscure smaller companies which only re-released kits from the "mainstream" manufacturers. (2) A listing of kit for a particular aircraft does not necessarily mean that the kit is still available. Many have been discontinued and out of production for many years, but they still turn up on eBay from time to time, and although better kits have superseded these "oldies," they are included here for historical interest and because many modelers still have examples in their "stash" and because they can still be built into good models. (3) Where more than one kit is listed, the modeler will have to determine for himself/herself which is the best or more specific to the variant of the aircraft being modeled, as this is a somewhat subjective matter. Where known, specific model variants (i.e., -1, -2, -3, etc.) follow the kit number. (4) A question mark following a specific reference means that the release of this kit is unconfirmed. (5) The abbreviation "conv." in parenthesis following a listing means that this kit provides conversion parts only and that another kit will have to be used to provide the rest of the model, as specified in the conversion kit's instructions. (6) The abbreviation "mod." in parenthesis means the kit listed must be modified to the proper configuration. (7) Confirmed future releases are noted by an asterisk (*).

I undoubtedly have overlooked a kit or two, so any major omissions or errors should be brought to my attention at the email address shown above; however, I am unable to answer any questions about which kit is "best" or how to accomplish kit modifications. Neither can I supply any of these kits, nor can I suggest where to obtain them. I also am not able to suggest proper color schemes or decals for these aircraft. I don't wish to spoil the fun and excitement of your doing your own research or searching for these kits!

Acknowledgements: Many thanks to the members of the 72nd Scale U.S. Military Aircraft Group (72ndscaleUSmilair@yahoo.com) and the WW I Digest (wwi-models.org) for reviewing this list and making suggestions and corrections prior to publication. Both are great groups, and I recommend them highly.

Notes:

1. Common label for those semi-solid, limited-production resin kits manufactured by various groups, cottage industries, and one-man firms in Czechoslovakia beginning in the early 1980s and generally available only by trade. Not to be confused with CzechMaster Kits and/or Czech Master Resin.
2. Airfix Corporation of America, established by Airfix in 1963 to distribute the Airfix line in the USA. Lasted until 1965, when MPC assumed that role, using the Airfix Craftmaster logo.
3. Airfix kits reboxed by MPC for sale in the US 1965-68. The Airfix Craftmaster logo was dropped in 1968; thereafter, Airfix kits appeared under the MPC label until 1978.
4. Revell kit H-208, "General Dynamics F-111 TFX," is the only F-111 kit known to include parts for the abortive F-111B. All others listed must be modified using one of the available conversion kits, although the "long-wing" variants (C/G/FB-111A) are most suitable for conversion.
